Bush: US must end addiction to Mideast oil

By David E. Sanger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President George W. Bush said Tuesday that the United States must end its addiction to oil from the Middle East.

"We need to diversify our energy sources," Bush said in a speech to Congress. "We need to find new sources of energy that will not be subject to the same volatility as oil."

Bush said the United States must also work to reduce its dependence on oil from the Middle East. "We need to find new sources of energy that will not be subject to the same volatility as oil," he said.

Bush said the United States must also work to reduce its dependence on oil from the Middle East. "We need to find new sources of energy that will not be subject to the same volatility as oil," he said.

Iran threatens to stop UN nuke inspections

TEHRAN—The Islamic Republic of Iran threatened to stop international inspections with the United Nations watchdog on the issue, and the United States reacted in a countermeasure.

Iran said it was considering such a move after the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) announced that it would not accept the country's offer to suspend its nuclear program for a year.

The IAEA said it was not ready to accept the offer because it did not believe Iran was being completely honest about its nuclear program.

Lies, conspiracy cited at Enron CEOs' trial

HOUSTON Three top executives of Enron Inc. are on trial in Houston for allegedly lying to investors and the public about the company's financial health. The trial, which began Monday, is the first in a series of proceedings against Enron executives. The company's stock price has fallen sharply since the revelation of its accounting fraud in late 2001. The trial is expected to last several weeks.

Afghans win aid, military pledges

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 — The United States and other nations have pledged to provide Afghanistan with $1 billion in aid and military equipment, a move that is seen as a significant step toward stabilizing the country after the fall of the Taliban regime.

The aid package, announced by the State Department, includes $500 million in humanitarian assistance, $250 million in military equipment, and $250 million in economic development aid. The aid is to be provided over a period of five years.

The aid package is part of a larger effort to rebuild Afghanistan's infrastructure and economy. The United States is also providing training and equipment to the Afghan National Security Forces, which are being trained by the United States and other nations.

The aid package is also a response to the humanitarian crisis in Afghanistan. Millions of people are suffering from lack of food, shelter, and medical care. The aid package is intended to help alleviate these hardships.

The aid package is also a signal of the United States' commitment to Afghanistan. The United States has been a strong supporter of the Afghan people since the fall of the Taliban. The aid package is a further demonstration of this commitment.

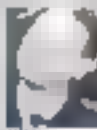

Afghan sworn in as new justice

AFGHANISTAN, Sept. 25 — A new Afghan government has been sworn in, marking a significant milestone in the country's history. The new government, led by President Hamid Karzai, has pledged to bring stability and justice to the country.

The new government was sworn in at a ceremony in Kabul. President Karzai, who was elected in a free and fair election, addressed the crowd and pledged to bring stability and justice to the country. He also pledged to rebuild the country's infrastructure and economy.

The new government is composed of members from various ethnic groups and political parties. This is seen as a positive step toward national reconciliation and stability.

The new government is also committed to the rule of law and justice. It has pledged to reform the judicial system and to ensure that all citizens are treated equally under the law.

Wounded in battle

AFGHANISTAN, Sept. 25 — A group of Afghan soldiers were wounded in a battle with Taliban fighters. The battle took place in a rural area of the country. The soldiers were fighting to protect a village from the Taliban.

The battle was fierce, and many soldiers were wounded. The Taliban fighters were using heavy weapons, including rockets and machine guns. The Afghan soldiers were fighting bravely, but they were outnumbered.

The battle resulted in the deaths of several Taliban fighters. The Afghan soldiers were able to hold the village, but they suffered heavy casualties. The wounded soldiers are being treated in a hospital in Kabul.

The battle is part of a larger conflict between the Afghan government and the Taliban. The Taliban is trying to take control of the country, and the Afghan government is fighting to prevent this.

Protest settles fight for top cops title

By [Name] and [Name] | [Date]

MANILA (Inquirer) — A protest by police officers in Manila today settled a long-standing fight for the title of top police officer in the Philippines. The officers, who were part of a group known as the "Top Cops," had been demanding the title for years. The protest, which was held in front of the Philippine National Police (PNP) headquarters, ended with the officers being granted the title. The officers, who were part of a group known as the "Top Cops," had been demanding the title for years. The protest, which was held in front of the Philippine National Police (PNP) headquarters, ended with the officers being granted the title.

Love camp' to host special kids in QC

By [Name] | [Date]

MANILA (Inquirer) — A "Love camp" in Quezon City is set to host special kids, including those with disabilities, in a program aimed at promoting social inclusion and community support. The camp, which is organized by a local NGO, will provide a safe and supportive environment for the children, where they can interact with other children and receive necessary services. The camp is expected to be a success, as it will provide a much-needed platform for these children to express themselves and be part of a community.

Manila, Capas de tips

By [Name] | [Date]

MANILA (Inquirer) — The Manila and Capas areas are expected to see a significant increase in the number of tips received by the police, as the police department has launched a new initiative to encourage citizens to report crimes and provide information. The initiative, which is part of a larger effort to improve law enforcement, will provide citizens with a secure and confidential way to report crimes. The police department expects that this initiative will lead to a higher number of tips, which will help them to identify and catch criminals more effectively.

As the 1990s unfolded, the U.S. economy was experiencing a period of rapid growth and expansion. The Federal Reserve, under the leadership of Alan Greenspan, implemented a monetary policy that kept interest rates low, which stimulated economic activity. The stock market, particularly the technology sector, experienced a significant boom, leading to a period of high corporate earnings and stock prices. This economic environment contributed to a sense of optimism and confidence among investors and the general public.

There are a number of reasons why the results of the study may be biased. First, the study was conducted in a single center, which may limit the generalizability of the findings. Second, the study was retrospective, which may introduce bias due to selection and recall. Third, the study did not include a control group, which may limit the ability to draw conclusions about the effectiveness of the intervention. Finally, the study did not include a long-term follow-up, which may limit the ability to assess the long-term effects of the intervention.

the 1990s, the number of people who have been infected with HIV has increased significantly. In 1990, there were about 1 million people living with HIV in the United States. By 2000, that number had risen to about 4 million. And in 2008, it was estimated that there were about 12 million people living with HIV in the United States. This increase in the number of people living with HIV is due to a number of factors, including the fact that HIV is now a chronic condition that can be managed with medication, and the fact that there are now more people who are aware of the risks of HIV and are taking steps to protect themselves.

to control the way that it can be used. Many feel that controlling access to a new computer network is more important than controlling the network itself. For example, many companies are reluctant to share their data because it is so critical to their success. They are also concerned about the security of their data. This is a major concern for many companies, and it is one that must be addressed if the network is to be used effectively.

There are a number of ways to get the most out of your investment. For example, you can use a variety of strategies to maximize your returns. One of the most common is to use a combination of different assets, such as stocks, bonds, and real estate. This can help to diversify your portfolio and reduce risk. Another strategy is to use leverage, which involves borrowing money to invest. This can increase your potential returns, but it also increases your risk. Finally, you can use a variety of other strategies, such as hedging and arbitrage, to protect your investment and maximize your returns. By using a combination of these strategies, you can maximize your investment returns and achieve your financial goals.

with them. Children and young adults are often very close to their parents and may have a strong sense of loyalty to them. This can make it difficult for them to accept the fact that their parents are not always right and that they may have made mistakes. It is important to help them understand that everyone makes mistakes and that it is okay to ask for help and support when they need it.
